The Internet is a wonderful resource that adds another dimension to the classroom. As a student, you have the freedom to access the Internet to research information, communicate with others, and access resources. However, it is important to understand that the Internet is not a substitute for education. Classroom activities and activities that are done online must be done in a responsible and respectful manner.

Acceptable Use of the Internet

The internet is a powerful tool, but it must be used responsibly. It is important to remember that the Internet is a vast and diverse place, and not everything you find online is accurate, reliable, or appropriate. It is your responsibility as a student to ensure that you are using the Internet responsibly and respectfully.

Here are some guidelines to help you use the Internet responsibly:

1. Use the Internet for educational purposes only.
2. Be respectful and courteous when communicating with others online.
3. Do not share personal information online.
4. Do not engage in inappropriate behavior online.
5. Do not download or upload illegal content.
6. Do not use the Internet to access or create pornographic content.
7. Do not use the Internet to access or create content that is harmful to others.
8. Do not use the Internet to access or create content that is harmful to yourself.

If you have any questions about acceptable use of the Internet, please talk to your teacher or principal. It is important to remember that the Internet is a powerful tool, and it is up to you to use it responsibly.

Updated February 2014

Acceptable Use Policy

Technology

Copyright © 2014